

CALL FOR STUDENT TUTORS
for the 1st semester of the 2026/2027 academic year
to the course:
„PNF PRACTICE 1.”

The number of student tutors accepted by the Department is 1.

Duties of the student tutor include:

- a) The student tutor regularly attends the classes of the given subject or consults with the instructor supervising the work.
- b) The tutor should participate in the ongoing tasks of the faculty under the instructor lecturer's supervision, 7 hours/week, including the 4 hours/week duty connected to the tender publishing department. The tutor should keep extra classes for the students, parallel to the voluntary course, once a week, for 2x45 min. The class time and topic should be published on Coospace and announced before the tutor class.
- c) During the tutor class, the main tasks are to prepare and organize the anatomical models and devices, prepare test questions and educational supplements, be prepared for the students' questions, and be able to introduce new, effective studying techniques.
- d) According to the decision of the head of the department, the student tutor might be included to support the students in their scientific work.
- e) The tutor will be responsible for the devices and anatomical models in use; they should also follow all the work and fire safety instructions, as well as the health protection rules.
- f) Tutoring work will not exempt the student tutor from accomplishing other courses and duties (e.g., attending classes) in their own training program.

Conditions for application: Any presently active student of the Faculty of Health Sciences and Social Studies can apply for this call

In the case of applicants on Bachelor's training (BSc/BA):

Those students can apply who have successfully completed at least 2 semesters, besides:

- a) had at least a „good” average mark in the academic studies in the previous 2 semesters,
- b) had an excellent (5) mark in the applied course,
- c) is able to coordinate small study groups of students and has good communication skills.

In the case of applicants on Master's degree trainings (MSc/MA):

Those students can apply who have successfully completed at least 1 semester, besides:

- a) had at least a „good” average mark in the academic studies in the previous semester,
- b) is able to coordinate small study groups of students and has good communication skills.

The student tutor mandate is for a determined time, namely from 14-09-2026 to 12-12-2026.

Advantages and payment of the student tutor:

- Student tutors are paid by commission fee, after handing in the certificate of performance for one amount at the end of the term. The current commission fee is 30.000 Ft/month.
- Student tutoring might turn advantageous when applying for student grants, dormitory admission, or job applications.

Deadline for submission is: 12 June 2026

The application should contain the following documents:

- 1) Professional CV
- 2) Motivation letter
- 3) Signed certificate from the Faculty's Educational Office about the completed courses and semesters
- 4) Any certificate that proves the suitability of the applicant for coordinating a small group of students or previous tutoring activities

The application should be submitted electronically to Dr. habil. Andrea Domján, Associate Professor (domjan.andrea.agnes@szte.hu).

The student who wins the tender will get an answer by email by 30 June 2026.

Detailed rules governing student tutors' activities are summarized in the “Demonstrator Regulations” document, available on the faculty website (in Hungarian).

Szeged, 12 May 2026

Éva Máthéné Köteles PhD
Head of the Department